

Local Farmer's Markets

Buying locally grown produce is not only good for your health but also the economy. When you purchase foods in season, grown here in the tri-state, you can save money and support local farmers at the same time. No matter what area of the Queen City you live in, you can access a wonderful selection of fresh produce from these local markets. If we have left off your favorite farmer's market, contact us. For more eating local resources visit www.eatlocalcory.org, www.cincinnati farmersmarkets.org and www.localharvest.org.
